Engaged pedagogy

Strong explanations of different abstract political science concepts, simplified activities that helped students grasp concepts, incredibly engaging format.

The variety in activities/presentations kept the class very engaging, and Daphne's own passion for the topics really shone through to make the subject more interesting and exciting.

As a non-IR major taking an IR required course, I was afraid the theoretical concepts might be hard to grasp. However, Daphne's discussion section helped break down lectures, went over course content, and even introduced other interesting information about IR that I can apply to classes I take in the future. Daphne is a fabulous TA and made sure all of us understood the course concepts. You can tell that she wants the best for her students and definitely was a reason for my success in this class!

Daphne Yang is an incredible instructor. She brings enthusiastic knowledge to a topic that can be dense and overcomplication tendencies. Particularly in this class iteration where the actual lecture sections taught by the professor felt very disorganized and bare, Daphne was able to expand and bring clarity in a very engaging manner.

Daphne knows how to connect with her students, she has exceptional teaching skills, and beyond that, she is always able to answer our questions with the utmost care, attention to detail, and accuracy possible. Daphne is among the instructors that make my time here at USC worthwhile, she doesn't just encourage us students to attend lectures and discussion sections, she makes the class time so engaging and fulfilling, that I have never once even thought of missing her class.

Creating a welcoming learning environment

Always welcomed questions, very very kind TA, students also felt so comfortable in the class that everyone was open to talking to one another. Daphne also made a separate Google doc to share resources on ID terms with other students and it really helped to promote collaboration.

i love being in your section and the energy that you bring into the class. makes the classroom a very comfortable environment to learn in and I feel like you teach and condense the materials so well for us.

The most valuable aspect of this discussion was the ability to go over course concepts from lecture in an environment where discussion was encouraged as well as be able to ask questions freely.

You are an amazing teacher. Even though I was a bit shy in discussion periods, you always had fun lessons and really helped me to learn the course content.

Fostering critical thinking

The most valuable aspect of this course is understanding why global politics are what they are. You learn a lot about why countries act the way they do, rather than from a surface-level news article. It gives you global perspectives on conflicts.

The most valuable aspect of this course would be learning different perspectives, especially globally and politically. It provides different viewpoints and teaches you to be more open-minded with any situation.

The most valuable aspect of this course to me was getting to see all my peers different views on International Relations and current topics.
